EFFECT OF DAM ON INDIANS

The Erie Sunday paper carried a full page feature on the Kinzua dam, the basic theme of which was that the Indians had lost another war and were about to be driven off of 9,000 acres of land. It didn't mention that there are over thirty thousand acres involved, and that even the nine thousand will be flooded only in extreme cases.

Actually, about a third of this nine thousand will be covered with water. No buildings will be allowed on any of this portion, but most of it will be available for agriculture and grazing, and should be made richer for the occasional flooding.

In addition the remaining land will be in an enviable position. So much so that we are sure private interests would grab it in a hurry if such a procedure were allowed. But the Indians are protected from such a maneuver.

The small sacrifice the Indians are about to make does not involve moving thousands of them from their homesteads and denying them a future. There is little or no sacrifice. Instead there is a step toward potential prosperity if they use their advantage wisely.

The plans call for a summer storage pool that will cover 3,667 acres of the reservation. The other 5,347 acres involved would be used only occasionally for temporary impoundment of floods. Because the reservation acreage is 30,469, only 12 per cent of this will be subject to protracted flooding.

The Erie paper left the impression that over 4,000 Indians were about to lose their homes. According to the Legislative Manual of New York State there were only 1131 Indians in the entire area in 1956. This is a long way from 4,000 and of course a comparatively small percentage of the 1131 would be involved in the easement area where habitation will be denied, and those moved will be compensated for their trouble and paid for their property.

Actually the Indians will not lose their ownership of the land. It will remain in the possession of the Seneca Nation because the government is asking for a flowage easement. It allows them to use the land for anything except buildings.

They would continue to have the use of the land for some types of agriculture, fishing, and hunting. And that fishing and hunting angle can be used to their own private advantage or they can commercialize their favored position on the lake.

Such rights already have been granted by the Seneca Nation. It has granted land to Salamanca as a site for the city; to the Pennsylvania and Erie railroads for rail lines; to public agencies for highways; to public utilities for electric and telephone lines; to industries for pipe lines; to private interests for farms and buildings; and to oil and gas interests for leaseholds.

It narrows down to this. The public needs a flowage easement. It will permanently use only 3,667 acres of the 30,469. Another 5,347 acres will be used part of the time when heavy flood water must be controlled. Any habitations in this involved area must be moved, for which the Indians would receive just compensation for the acquisition and reasonable costs for the resettlement of persons and property.

Only a part of the approximately 1200 residents would be directly involved, and all of them will be in a favored position to enjoy an expected new prosperity that always follows the creation of such facilities.

ABUNDANT LIFE

CHRIST MAKES THE JOB EASY

One evening a businessman came home with his brief case crammed full of papers that had to be processed before morning. He hurriedly ate dinner, "laid down the law" to his family that he was not to be disturbed and diligently began to work on the papers.

After 15 minutes, his small son came in. "Daddy," he said, "play with me."

"Don't bother me, Jimmy," the father said. "I must get this work done."

The boy left the room but in another few minutes he was back again.

"Daddy," he said, "please take time to play with me."

The father turned away from his paper work. "Jimmy, I'll tell you what I'll do," he said as he tore a large map of the world out of a magazine. "I am going to tear this map in small pieces. If you can put the pieces back together, I will give you a quarter."

The father said to himself: "He's too little to put the map together. But it will occupy his time and I can get my work done. Then, when I'm through, I'll give him the quarter anyway. It will be worth it just to keep the little tyke out of my hair so I can get this work done."

The father became absorbed in his work. But not for long! In about 15 minutes Jimmy was back—the map completed.

"I put the world back together, Daddy," he said. "Give me my quarter."

The father was amazed. "How did you know where the countries belonged on the map of the world, Jimmy? You don't know geography!"

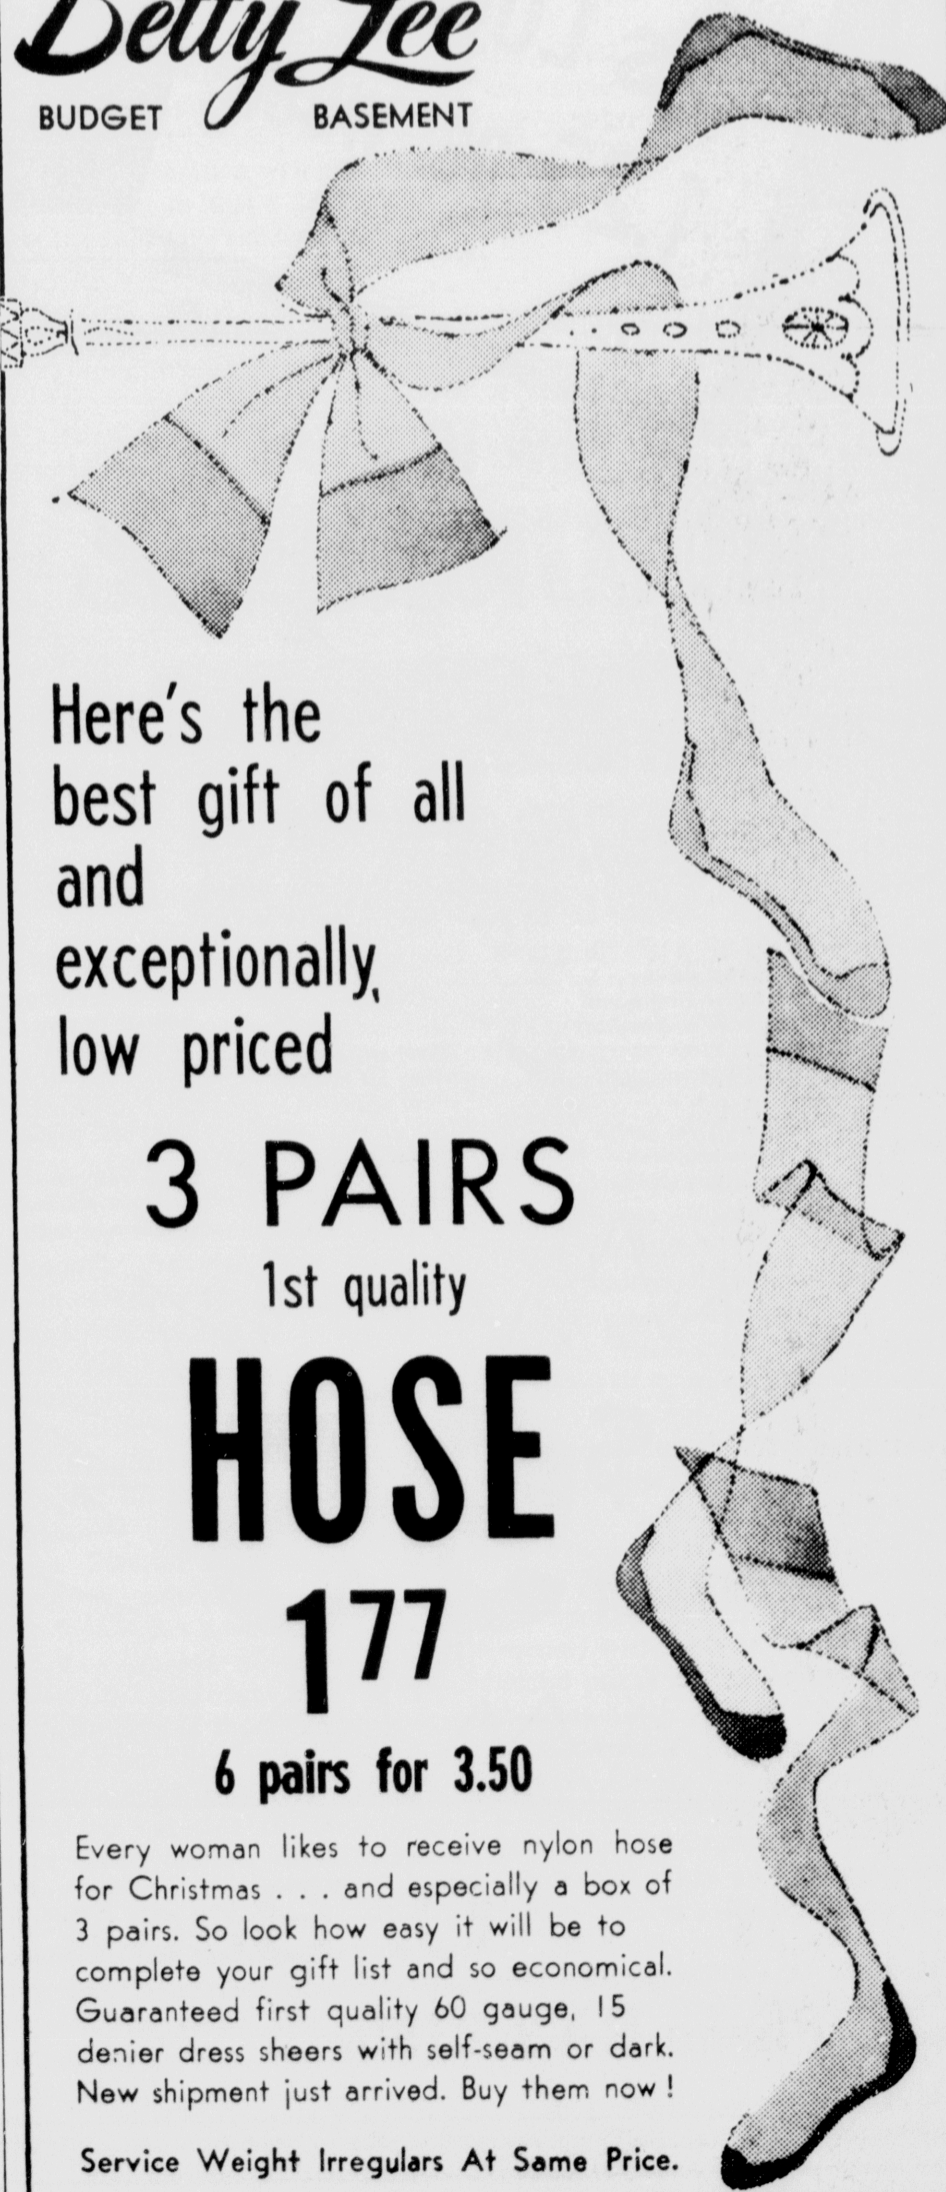

"Oh, it was easy, Daddy," he said. "I just turned the pieces over on their backs, and I saw that they formed a picture of Jesus. I know what Jesus looks like!"

"When I put Jesus together, the whole world fell into place!"

Yes, the whole world can "fall into place" when we recognize Jesus and follow Him.

As the picture on the back of the map helped the little boy complete his task, so Christ can make any job easy if we keep our eyes on Him.

Hypocrisy Of Heels

By Inez Robb

Men and malarky! What a parlay! I love it, but occasionally someone has to blow a whistle on this combo when it gets out of hand.

If the boys will just simmer down, one of their own evil inventions, which they wished on women and now denounce as if it were the work of a female devil, will pass from the fashion scene.

In short, spike heels, wished on my hapless sex by Italian designers and American manufacturers of the opposite sex, are beginning to fade. The handsome English walking shoe with stacked leather heel, broadly based, firmly planted, is making a notable comeback for daytime wear in the fashion world.

There is now scant point in city councils throughout the nation dreaming up a rash of legislation to outlaw spike heels, the work of other men, at this late date. The lads are about three years late in their selfless attempt to save women from the folly foisted on them by Les Boys.

It has been all but impossible in recent weeks to pick up a paper minus a story of some American community -- North, South, East or West -- busily preparing or passing legislation to outlaw spike heels. Just the other day, a nice, sensible circuit judge, John Kelly, in Knoxville, Tenn., ruled that "the wearing of high heels is not willful misconduct."

Well, bully for him and his opinion that further exalts the American judiciary! His decision was handed down in a case in which an employer claimed the absence of liability under the workmen's compensation law for a fall by a woman wearing high heels.

Or, at least, the employer called the heels high, although in truth they only measured two inches, a height that can be regarded as high only by adolescents, collegians or beatniks who deem the ballet slipper a shoe.

The scattered American communities that have been trying to make the spike heel illegal have no intention of enforcing the law. They simply want a statute on the books that will protect the cowardly municipality from damage suits if any of us chic girls in high heels fall or are injured in pitted, rutted, or unkempt old streets.

So much for chivalry!

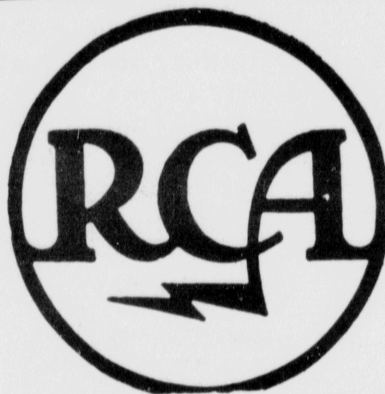

I have hated spike heels passionately since some Italian villain invented them and American manufacturers grabbed the pattern and ran with it. But until the walking shoe with stacked leather heel recently began sneaking into the fashion picture, a woman shopping for shoes had scant choice between spike heels on the one hand -- or foot -- and such heelless modes as the ballet slipper, ground-grippers or those space shoes invented for persons with real tootsie troubles.

But who, unless the victim of a mean metatarsal, wants to be a flat-foot floogie, even with the floy-floy? "Sensible shoes," phooey! But "spikes," phooey, too. By candlelight and eventide, I expect to teeter around on high heels like a Chinese belle with bound foot. But I would love, once more, to teeter around on something more substantial than a shrunken dime.

It is my experience that gentlemen not only prefer blondes but high heels. It does something to and for the female ankle, and most members of the opposite sex are ankle men.

So when the sex that invented, manufactured and Madison-Avenued women into spike heels suddenly turns righteous and tries to legislate against them, I smell hypocrisy in spades. It was Jack Lemon in "Some Like It Hot" who paid high heels the ultimate tribute. Strolling behind Marilyn Monroe swaying on her spikes, he breathed ecstatically, "Jello on springs!"

NO WAGE TAX VOTE. Eleven members of Warren Borough Council gathered last night on request of the finance committee and expressed a unanimous opinion that the earned income tax ordinance not be proposed for adoption.

The session was called to consider the details of the tax ordinance proposed for adoption at the Dec. 14 meeting.

It was apparent in the session that a question was in the air as how the tax would be administered. The council and finance committee, generally, seemed to feel that the ordinance as presented by the solicitor was too costly. In view of the apparent excessive collection costs, the town fathers agreed not to vote on the issue at this time.

Trees and Toothpicks

When the Harrisburg dinor pushes back his chair and let's forth a mild groan of happiness following the Christmas meal he has consumed his next thought may be of a toothpick. Having thus fulfilled his table-side demands, a walk to aid digestion may be in order, and he even may still have that bit of a pick in use when he strolls by a 77-foot hemlock which has been erected on the capitol steps.

If he tosses the beaten up tooth-cleanser at the foot of the tree it will seem a bit minute and a poor thing by comparison. This may seem even more emphatically so when it is learned that over 2,500,000 Christmas trees are used in Pennsylvania, and almost half of them are grown in this state. Most of the rest come from New England.

But do not underestimate the toothpick. Six times as many trees are cut annually for toothpicks as are cut for Christmas trees! The smile that goes with merry Christmas thus is lent a whiter gleam.

The hemlock is the official state tree, and has been so since 1931 when it was given this designation because of its prominent part in the state's history. Pennsylvania led the nation in lumbering from 1860 to 1870, and at the center of the boom were the forests of hemlock and pine.

Eighty per cent of the Christmas trees grown in our state are Scotch pine. The rest are mostly spruce and red pine. There are some white pine, douglas fir, Austrian pine and balsam.

The toothpick comparison is used to convince you that the annual raid on the nurseries makes a small dent on the supply, being exceeded even by the demand for the after-linner tool.

We now will hear about tree safety, and it is worth serious consideration. The best step is to keep the tree in water after cutting the base diagonally. Keep it away from hot spots and don't use candles. Also check your electric decorations. Make it a safe as well as a merry one.

MAY SAVE PUBLIC FUNDS. The Warren County Commissioners this month asked for bids for bonds to cover county office holders and as a result may save about $1900 of the taxpayers' money compared to costs four years ago.

By law, county officers handling monies must be bonded by a company of their own choice. The cost, however, is paid by the county.

In 1956 approximately $3400 was paid out, but if all incoming and re-elected officers who take the oath the first of January accept the low bid received by the commissioners there will be just short of a two thousand dollar savings.

The lowest bid was from P.T.F., $1542.20. The highest was from American Casual, $2734.54. In all, eight bids were received.

A CIVIL COURT JURY Wednesday afternoon returned a verdict in favor of the defendant who was being sued as a result of a car accident which happened at Tidoute last March.

Jack Anderson, Warren, died of injuries sustained when a car in which he was an occupant sailed off Babylon Hill rd. and struck a tree and house. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Anderson, were asking for damages for their son's estate.

The case was against Leland Shorts, Jr., of Warren, owner of the car.

Testimony in court, however, pointed out that it has never been determined who was driving the vehicle when the accident occurred.

Besides Anderson and Shorts, Esther Marie Johnson of Tidoute, and Robert Anderson of East Kane, a brother of the victim, were also injured.

The jury took less than an hour to reach its decision.

THE BLAST AND WAILING of sirens Monday evening between 6 and 8 p.m. will mark a state-wide Civil Defense Drill. During this period local sirens will sound three times.

The first signal will be the long, steady "Alert" signal which means listen for emergency instructions. Under attack conditions, these instructions are publicly broadcast by all radio stations which are operating either on their regular frequencies or on established Conelrad emergency frequencies, 640 and 1240 on your radio dial.

The second siren will be the wailing, or warbling, "Take Cover" signal. This means seek shelter immediately. Under attack conditions this signal brings all normal activities to a halt.

The public itself will not have to participate in Monday's drill, but is urged to listen to the signals and know their meaning. It has been stated by a local CD official that upon hearing the "Alert" signal, a person should be ready to ready himself in one-half an hour to be under cover for seven days.

The third siren will be a repeat sounding of the first, or the "Alert", and will announce the all-clear.

Democrats May Gain A Fresh, Young Look

By Doris Fleeason

WASHINGTON, -- Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler has succeeded in bringing into the Democratic Advisory Council, either in person or by proxy, every Presidential candidate and powerful party interest, including the South, except the Congressional leaders, Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senator Lyndon Johnson.

This will be seen next week end in New York City where sessions of the council are being coordinated with a giant fund-raising dinner in honor of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Numerous social occasions may cloak but cannot conceal the struggle for power which Butler so far is winning hands down.

His success is basically due to his popularity with the state and local organizations, which have been winning so many remarkable victories. Their leaders are vigorous and ambitious; they hope to rise higher and shine even more brightly in a Democratic national administration.

They are not hostile to the Democratic Congress and its Texas leaders; they like Rayburn and admire Johnson. But they discern no dividends from their control of Congress; their eyes are fixed on the White House. Hence the big New York parade from which the Speaker and Johnson will be noticeably missing.

Both were invited at the start to join the council and refused. At the time they did not feel it could in any way minimize their own importance, as indeed it does not from the standpoint of legislation. That it could develop as almost to isolate them from strictly party affairs did not seem possible at the time, but this is the present effect.

By now it is clear, however, that Butler is a tough customer. He has survived staggering money troubles and public scoldings from former President Truman, an admitted expert in that department. Every national committee meeting produces some kind of challenge to his authority, but somewhere along the line it gets lost.

It is true that circumstances have operated to magnify his powers. The broken field of Presidential candidates, in which no one seems to be able to draw ahead of the others, has kept the party leaders from forming hard and fast alliances for any purposes. With no one able to name the next king, the courtiers are exceptionally polite to each other and everybody else.

Butler's determination to attach a young and forward look to the convention next summer was greatly aided by the Johnson candidacy. It meant that Speaker Rayburn, eager to advance his fellow-Texas, disqualified himself as permanent chairman of the convention. The Speaker has told intimates he does not now want the job.

Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts, Rayburn's second man in the House and long chairman of the convention platform committee, has already quietly told Butler that he, too, will bow out next year. This leaves the chairman free to hunt for precisely those key convention figures who will impart the aura he seeks to achieve.

To find them, and a keynoter of the same stripe, is not easy. The Senate, the House and the governors should be represented, the geographical and ideological aspects are important and ideally no favorites should be played with respect to any candidate. The last is especially difficult where there are so many candidates.

Butler and his advisers find themselves inevitably directed toward the smaller states as they pursue their search. For example, Senators Edmund Muskie of Maine and Frank Church of Idaho are on practically everybody's list. But this year even smaller state governors entertain national ambitions.

Butler is often told, by Truman among others, that he ought to strive for party unity. He is calmly

Kennedy Will Formally Announce In January

By Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON, -- Having traveled more than 100,000 miles in 20 states, eaten 173 lunches and dinners consisting of creamed chicken and green peas, speaking almost continuously for three months to public audiences, groups of politicians or at press conferences, Senator John F. Kennedy is concluding this week the first phase of his Presidential campaign.

Shortly after the first of the year he will make a formal announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination. It will come as a surprise to practically no one, since the Senator's intentions have been evident for at least a year and a half.

Kennedy's managers profess to be more than pleased with the results of his intensive tour. They point to press reports of enthusiasm and interest shown almost everywhere. And, above all, they cite Kennedy's rating in the polls, sustained at around 26 or 27 percent, while his rivals, Senators Hubert Humphrey and Stuart Symington, have not moved out of the basement in spite of their own strenuous campaigning.

But nevertheless there is within the Kennedy camp an uneasy concern over the next phase. The front runner who has pushed his luck so hard can expect a banana peel somewhere. The opposition will concentrate on trying to throw him and a bad break could have sudden and perhaps disastrous consequences.

Some observers are saying that the birth-control issue, as raised by the Draper Report and the statement of the Roman Catholic bishops in opposition to government support for efforts to damp down the population explosion by artificial birth prevention, has hurt Kennedy's chances. In an interview with James Reston of The New York Times, Kennedy, a Catholic, said he thought it would be a mistake for the United States to further such efforts in underdeveloped countries.

The report of a White House committee surveying foreign aid suggested that in many countries the population increase was outrunning the growth in production of food and fibers. Therefore, it was implied, without some restraint imposed on the zooming population conditions would get steadily worse rather than better, and foreign aid would be wasted. The question raised was whether the United States could, on request of a country receiving foreign aid, supply help in the attempt to hold down the birth rate.

Kennedy believes the question should be submitted not only to candidates who happen to be Catholics but to all Presidential aspirants. Those to whom it has been put have either taken evasive action or have come out with masterful on-the-one-hand and on-the-other-hand statements.

The Senator's managers insist that birth control will not be an issue; that it has never been an issue on the national level, and it is most unlikely to be brought into the campaign by way of the connection with foreign aid. This is true insofar as public discussion is concerned.

But the question is likely to remain what the strategists call a sleeper - an area of doubt and uncertainty just below the surface of public debate. It raises a relationship that gives the Democrats, who have not forgotten the submerged prejudices of the Al Smith campaign, confident that the party will profit from its display of conviction on both sides.

the nervous tremors. That is, the relationship between religion and public policy.

A sign of the Kennedy uneasiness is seen in the reaction in the Kennedy camp to a biography of the Senator to appear early next year. The author, James MacGregor Burns, a professor of political science at Williams College, was given free access to Kennedy files and he is considered pro-Kennedy in Massachusetts politics.

Nevertheless, Kennedy and his managers are distinctly unhappy over the manuscript. They would like to make it, in their own phrase, "more accurate." Outsiders who have seen it felt that Burns has done a remarkably objective job which should, on balance, benefit the Senator's candidacy.

With generous resources of money, supplied largely by his family, Kennedy will early in 1960 enter the second phase of his campaign. His intention is to go into Presidential primaries in at least six, and perhaps 10, states. The states where he is uncertain are, as of now, Ohio, Wisconsin and California.

This will mean an even more intensive and gruelling stretch than the candidate is now winding up. Next May he will be 43 years old. There are doubters who feel that he is too young and he looks even younger than his age.

But, as Kennedy himself has observed, if the successful candidate must survive this kind of marathon he will have to be young.

NEXT PRINTING STEP

You probably have read about the new facsimile telegraph service. You can wire a letter across the nation for less than a telegram. This is used commercially for such things as ad copy and is not available in any but the major cities.

But it is tomorrow and it already is used by some newspapers. They can make up a page and telegraph the entire sheet to another community where they have paper. The page is duplicated exactly like the original and is ready to be used by a method such as is utilized by your Observer.

Comics, national columnists, and other features soon will be available to papers that can use such copy. In fact, entire pages of features will be made up and sent by facsimile. The receiving paper will photograph the copy directly onto a plate and go to press.

The Observer already is fully equipped to handle this service with the addition of one machine. A morning paper would be easily provided with such modern methods.

THIS IS THE YEAR for the county basketball teams to make their annual wish come true. The small town always makes much of a victory over a big neighbor and Warren county's small schools are no exceptions. Warren lacks a single letterman this season and on paper that suggests a weak season. But you don't win games on paper. That, of course, happens on the floor with a will to win and a desire to learn how.

***

THERE WILL BE MUCH TALK about sharing during the next few weeks. And most of us will feel the pull a bit stronger as the holiday draws closer. We sincerely want to help others but it is difficult to know how to do it.

You can't go walking down the street in search of a hungry family or a man who needs a new suit. It would be a rather inefficient way of accomplishing much, and a big share of the giving either would be wasted or would go to a few at the expense of others.

Sharing at Christmas time is made easy for us. There is no reason why anyone should not have plenty of food and at least the basic material items that make Christmas seem normal.

Already organized to handle the job of providing warm dinners, toys, remembrances for the imprisoned, gifts for servicemen, cheery messages and treats for veterans, and help for the aged who live alone, or for the sick, is the Salvation Army.

This is the easy way of sharing. Give to the Army and let it do the big job, a job it has been doing so efficiently for many holiday seasons. It is not just an easy way out. It is a very wise way because you can be certain that your money will go to someone who really needs it during these otherwise gloomy days.

And don't just give pennies. Really share!

TELEPHONE CASH registers rang as merrily this past year as did your call bell. In Pennsylvania the ninety-seven telephone utilities showed net increases amounting to $55.3 million. The Bell Telephone enjoyed $48.5 million of this net income which was an increase of over $5 million compared with the previous year.

The number of companies makes it appear to be a diversified business, but of the three million subscribers served, 96 companies served a half million and the Bell Telephone Company collected from the other 2.5 million.

The three million customers paid $276 million for local services and $123 million for toll charges. The companies paid 17,917 males and 27,264 females an average of $4,567. Of these the Bell employed 36,822.

GAS ALSO WAS HEALTHY. In September its average dividends had increased 2.5 per cent. They were paying off at $2.04 a share, up from $1.99 the previous year. In the midst of the steel strike, sales for industrial gas showed a gain of 12.4 per cent over the same period in the previous year.

AND THEY WILL FATTEN that in the months to come. The fattening is assured by a new rate allowed the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company in the twenty-five counties it serves in Western Pennsylvania. The PUC allowed the rise because the suppliers had upped their prices. The new bills now are supposed to cost non-heating customers about five cents more a month and heating customers about twenty cents more (company figures).

BOOKS OF THE FUTURE

Those who are interested in the new books that soon will be available should find much to keep them busy during early 1960. The quality of the books we can not determine, but there are some promising titles.

A first edition of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass" should be arriving this month. Feeling that this masterpiece has suffered much through later revisions, the book has been published in its original form and sounds like a must for students and those who prefer poetry.

Because the year coming up involves our national election, a book timed for January no doubt will see some circulation. It is "The Facts About Nixon", described as an unauthorized biography, and written by William Costello.

This is supposed to be "a book for Nixon's admirers, to find out why he has enemies; for his opponents, to find support for their views; and for the uncommitted, to read the record and draw their own conclusions." Costello is supposed to be an independent political reporter, now with Mutual Broadcasting, and a portion of the book already has appeared in The New Republic.

If you like adventure, winter's long trek can be eased in February by "A Twist of Sand", written by Geoffrey Jenkins, and centered on the South African coast.

And if your experience of surviving the winter offers you some sympathy for the lasting powers of man perhaps you will get something out of "The Story of Early Man", by H. E. L. Mellerish, which is human evolution to the end of the stone age.

"The Dandy" which covers the adventures of men's styles from Brummell to Beerbohm and is written by Ellen Moers will come forth in February. It starts with experiences of Beau Brummell and takes you through such lives as Beerbohm, Comte d'Orsay, Dickens, and Oscar Wilde, a strange combination of historical figures, and offering delightful possibilities.

(All of the above are Viking Books.)

We suggest you have a look at "The Gospel According to Thomas", if you have a friend who likes to read theology. This book is based on the thirteen papyrus volumes discovered in 1945 in upper Egypt, and are believed to consist of sayings ascribed to Jesus as quoted by the Apostle Thomas.

The book is novel in that it offers you an opportunity to be a scholar and researcher on your own. The facing pages are printed so that the original text is on the left and the translation is on the right. Every line of the original is reproduced and Greek variants are supplied as indicated.

New parables and shorter sayings of Jesus make the discovery of these volumes of great importance. You may read, study, and decide for yourself.

Bringing Zen and psychoanalysis together on a common ground of investigation will be the effort of a book due for February. A leading authority on Zen, D. T. Suzuki, gives the aims of Zen as an approach to human problems, and Dr. Erich Fromm, widely read psychoanalyst, discusses the relationship between his approach and religion. Richard de Martino attempts a synthesis of both. Name of the volume will be "Zen Buddhism and Psychoanalysis".

Another book with political influence will be "The Enemy Within", by Robert F. Kennedy, who was the counsel for the Senate select committee on improper activities in the labor management field. It is a January book.

These last three are Harper books, and in addition there are many fascinating titles, such as "Literature and Western Man" by J. B. Priestley, a five-volume production encompassing five centuries of western man and his literature. There will be "The Story of George Romney", Barnett's "Communist China and Asia", General Taylor's "The Uncertain Trumpet" which offers proposed corrections to eliminate our military deficiencies, and the first publication in America of Joyce Cary's "Charley is my darling".

These involve only two publishers and we haven't scratched the list they provide. There are over two dozen other publishers whose plans we will discuss with you in small part as the weeks roll by. Obviously, if you like new books, and freshly edited old ones, you can have them for the buying in the winter days ahead.

Are You Retiring This Year Or Next?

Do you plan to retire from employment or business this year -- or even next? The time to find out about the social security benefits payable to you and your dependents is now!

Be sure you get all the social security checks to which you are entitled. Speed up the receipt of your social security benefits by knowing your rights and being prepared when you apply for your monthly payments. Inquire before you retire.

At the time you file for benefits you should bring with you:

1. Your social security account number card.

2. Proof of your age. A birth or baptismal certificate is the best proof of age. However certain other old documents or records are acceptable. Your social security office will give you specific information on what types of proofs are acceptable and how they may be obtained.

3. A copy of Form W-2, "Statement of Wages Paid" for the preceding year. If you are self-employed, you should furnish a copy of your last year's tax return, Form 1040 and Schedule "C" (or Schedule "F" if a self-employed farmer) and proof of the social security tax payment for that year (cancelled check or a postal money order stub).

It's important too that you know what you have earned in employment or self-employment in the year you apply for your payments. For example, if you should retire the end of June, 1960, and then apply for benefits in the same year, you should be prepared to give an estimate of your total earnings for 1960 (January through June).

Never delay in contacting your social security office if you do not have any of these records of proofs available -- this could mean loss of benefits to you and your family.

Almost every worker attaining retirement age becomes eligible to old-age insurance benefits upon his retirement. The latest amendments to the social security law, signed by the President on August 28, 1958, provided higher monthly benefits to you when you retire and increased allowable wages while drawing social security checks.

You will prevent any possible loss of payments -- you will avoid delay in getting your first check -- you will know exactly how social security will fit into your retirement plans -- when you inquire before you retire!

Mr. Heifetz will do the Beethoven Concerto for violin and orchestra and will be joined by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, which will also present a number of notable works.

The Heifetz concert will be broadcast by the QXR Radio Network in

New York City. Local listeners should be able to hear this as WJTN-FM (Jamestown, N.Y.) is affiliated with the network.

Cast will include soprano Lisa Della Casa, soprano Laurel Hurley, and mezzo-soprano Regina Resnik. Walter Slezak will be making his Met debut. Others in the cast are Nicolai Gedda, tenor, and baritone Roald Reitan.

Leonard Bernstein will conduct the New York Philharmonic and Isaac Stern will be guest soloist on the live Carnegie Hall concert broadcast which WBEN-FM will carry exclusively Saturday night, Dec. 5, at 8:30. BELATED GREETINGS
WKBW-TV's first birthday anniversary slipped by without our notice.

The Buffalo station telecast its first local television show at 3 p.m. on Nov. 30, 1958, and at 5 p.m. that day, the first ABC network show, "Art Carney meets Peter and the Wolf" was telecast.

Now, a year later, WKBW-TV signs on every morning at 8:00 and gives viewers over fifteen and a half hours of continuous viewing.

ABOUT PROGRAMS & PEOPLE
ALCOHOLISM program is scheduled on WBEN-TV Saturday, Dec. 19, at 4:00. The program is called "To Your Health" and is being presented in cooperation with the Western New York Committee for Education on Alcoholism.

CHRISTMAS DAY CHURCH SERVICE will be telecast by NBC on Friday, Dec. 25, from 10 to 11 a.m. This is the annual Protestant church service on Christmas Day from the Washington Cathedral (Episcopal) in Washington, D.C.

BELL TELEPHONE HOUR on Dec. 18, NBC, 8:30-9:30 p.m., will be a special yule season colorcast with Thomas Mitchell as host. Guests will include the Lennon Sisters, 13-year old violinist Penny Ambrose, the Little Singers of Paris (30 boys), Rosemary Clooney, Lisa Della Casa and Giorgio Tozzi (Met stars), and others. This sounds like an hour of exceptionally fine musical entertainment.

ARROWSMITH, Sinclair Lewis novel, is to be made into a tv adaptation next year. David Susskind will produce the 90-minute version. He wants Hope Lange and Don Murray for the leads.

SPONSOR MAGAZINE predicts that Westerns, as a group, will continue to dominate the airwaves. Twenty-eight horse operas are still out in front in viewer ratings.

JACKIE GLEASON may do eight specials for CBS next year. That's a lot of Gleason.

BEA LILLIE is wanted by NBC for an all-British variety special for the "Sunday Showcase" series.

THE LINEUP, CBS hour-long show on Wednesday nights at 7:30 may get the red light in January or February due to low ratings. But many think this is a good show, especially since it was lengthened to an hour this season. A note to this effect sent to CBS might help to keep it on.

ARTHUR GODFREY is in Jamaica taping portions of a January 5 special for CBS. Other portions of the program will feature Jackie Gleason in New York and Godfrey's horse in Boston. Godfrey expects to go to Ireland to tape an April show.

DICK CLARK'S Sunday program on ABC will leave the air on Dec. 20, and be replaced by 21 Beacon Street. American Bandstand and his Saturday evening show will remain.

DAVE GARROWAY will be host on Friday, Jan. 1, when NBC televises a Bell Telephone Hour special. This will be a musical program featuring popular and classical artists who have been American "entertainment ambassadors" abroad. Others signed for the show are Louis Armstrong, Shirley Jones, Jack Cassidy, Jane Froman, concert pianist Grant Johannessen, several outstanding dancers and the Bell Telephone orchestra.

MYTHOLOGICAL SPONSOR

Max Banzhaf is a sponsor, an intelligent sponsor, a beast generally considered as mythological as the unicorn. Director of public relations of the Armstrong Cork Company, Mr. Banzhaf is interesting because he violently rejects the idea that the viewer is a moron with a twelve-year-old mentality. "I think that it is exceedingly naive to assume the consumer is a moron. If anything, the consumer is ahead of our advertising, ahead of the writers, the designers, everyone."

Armstrong's special baby is Circle Theater which deals with actual occurrence and is always honest drama about real people. During the quiz mania, Circle Theater was up against "$64,000 Question" and it got slaughtered in the ratings but Armstrong kept it on anyway: "Why did we have Circle Theater and why did we keep it? Well, we believe the public wants something more than just escape, something that sticks to the ribs, something that demands something of you. There's such a plethora of cowboys and Indians and private eyes. People buy a floor (which is what Armstrong sells) every eight years or so. It's a considered purchase. They have to form a favorable impression of a company. One good impression is worth more than ten weak or bad ones. We think our programs leave a good impression. They provoke thought. We get mediocre ratings as ratings go--twenty-two to twenty-five--but we're satisfied."

This is very unusual talk from a sponsor but Banzhaf is an independent thinker as sponsors go. "You can no longer distinguish the farmer from the banker," he'll tell you, "when you see him walking down Fifth Avenue. This is quite a sophisticated world we live in. The entire population isn't avant garde but they're certainly not morons. Now if an artist comes out with something the public doesn't like, he says the public is uneducated. I don't think the artist should be the absolute judge of what the public gets any more than I think the sponsors or the networks should be the absolute judge.

"You want to know how we look at it? First of all, television is not an art form which any artist can use to satisfy his own desires. In other mediums, the person has the right of choice. He can choose what he will or will not see. But television intrudes into the home. People can't monitor the sets for their kids; there isn't time. And even if there were, what can you do about an offensive show? The damage has already been done. So you can't just allow the artist to satisfy his own desires."

***
Banzhaf says that as a sponsor he makes a few changes in the script to see that it doesn't offend. It's hard to pin him down on what does or does not offend--beyond the admission that he wouldn't put on "Death of a Salesman." He feels networks still exercise an awful lot of control over programs. "How did we get where we are? What happened to Firestone, Studio One? Sponsors are not to blame for that. They have a great deal less to say about programs than they did once. Try to buy a program from them and see what you're offered by the networks.

Banzhaf strongly opposes the government's getting into the act, feeling that would lead to more mediocrity rather than less.

"The sponsor, the producer, the writers, the networks, will have to learn to live together. For a sponsor to sit there like a Buddha and say 'Do this' or 'Don't do that' is sheer lunacy. Only stupid people would try to use the power of their purse. But as I think that is wrong, I also think it's wrong for the artist to say 'I own this! It's mine and you sponsors should stay out of it.'

"As a nation I think we are going to legislate ourselves into a second rate power with 'Don't do this' or 'Don't try that.' We are going to relieve ourselves of vitality, of the power to compete. I am also afraid we might legislate this medium into mediocrity. I am happy to see the spotlight thrown on it but it could have its vitality destroyed by ill-considered indictments."

The Drive-in Annex at the Warren Post Office, which made such a hit with mailers last Christmas, will again be available this year for those who are forehanded and mail early. It will be open for business the week of December 7th from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m., including Saturday, the 12th. During the week of December 14th, including Saturday the 19th, this handy facility will be open from 9:00 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m.

While this Drive-in Annex is designed primarily for convenient mailing of packages without leaving your car, stamps may be purchased there and your bundles of Christmas cards may also be deposited there.

Entrance to this Annex will be from Third street only, as shown on the accompanying map. Large signs at the Third street driveway will point the way and will indicate when the Annex is open for business.

Note that it is not planned to operate this Annex nor to extend lobby window hours after December 19th, as it is anticipated all Christmas mailing will be completed by that date.

BOOKS, SCIENCE,
AND YOUNG PEOPLE

If the goal of science could be summed up in one word, it might be the word "discovery" -- discovery of new facts, new ideas, new relationships.

The scientific techniques of observing, questioning, and recording are something young people enjoy. Their eyes are open; they see many things that we adults miss. At every moment there is a question in their mind or on their lips. An answer from a book or from an expert doesn't always settle the matter. The answer itself often provokes further questions, more observations, and an increased desire to push just a bit further.

The young person can consult a book at his convenience, and can use it in terms of his own questions, problems, and interests. So it is very fortunate that there is a growing supply of new, exciting, informational books to keep pace with our growing interest and concern about science. Young people today have available books which were unheard of--perhaps undreamed of--when most of today's adults were in school one or two generations ago.

Modern books bring together text and illustrations which supplement and extend one another in getting across facts, ideas, and interrelationships which help the young person to understand our complex world. In this catalog are some of the best books of their kind; each developed by a team of authors, experts, editors, artists, and designers. They bring the exciting world of science to young people--and to their parents and teachers also.

Will interest: ages 10-up.

THE WORLD OF SCIENCE - Jane Werner Watson. This survey of the frontiers of science explains as simply as possible the complex problems, tools and techniques of research workers in astronomy geology, the life sciences, chemistry, physics and mathematics. Will interest: ages 10-up.

WALT DISNEY'S WHITE WILDERNESS - Robert Louvain. WHITE WILDERNESS is a passport to knowledge of the polar regions. It tells how birds and animals find food, protect themselves and rear their young in the treeless tundra and ice-covered waters of the Arctic. Will interest: ages 8-up.

Audubon clubs, Scout groups and thousands of individual bird-watching fans have made this one of the most popular Nature Guides. WALT DISNEY'S SECRETS OF LIFE - Rutherford Platt and the staff of the Walt Disney Studio. Tiny atoms have secrets and huge stars have secrets. GREEN WHS SQUAD TAKES THE FLOOR TONIGHT

A green, inexperienced Dragon team will match hardwood skills with the Youngsville Eagles tonight on the Eagle floor as the 1959-60 cage season begins for WHS. With no lettermen returning and only two boys having seen previous action, Coach Joe Massa's forces can be expected to have an uphill battle all the way. The squad is composed of men, some who have had JayVee experience, and others who are newcomers to the Warren High basketball scene.

Scrambling for berths on the starting five are Doug Lind, Arch Hunter, John Barr, Pete Ostergard, Jim Redding, Dick White, and Ross Kremer. Backing these boys up on the bench are Steve Fogle, Guy Albaugh, Pat Hartnett, Jim Depto, and Bill Berdine. This personnel will have to come a long way to match the 15-6 record posted by the Blue and White last year, but Massa believes "some intangible assets exist which, if they develop, will make for an interesting campaign."

All around the boys lack poise and polish but have exhibited a fine attitude during the pre-season practice, being conscientious and displaying a will to work. The Dragons will entertain a strong Erie Memorial Tech quintet on Saturday on the Beaty floor.

The Junior Varsity situation presents a much brighter picture as a group of sophomores are displaying some fine basketball know-how as they prepare for the season ahead. Coach Andy Randas has established a number of combinations utilizing all his boys in their best capacities. As the year progresses a few of these boys may be applying pressure on the varsity group.

NO DOE TAGS

Treasurer Robert Ritchie announced this afternoon that the 1959 doe tags for Warren County have been completely sold out. The 16,500 tags issued for this county were all sold as of noon yesterday (Thursday).

Area nimrods seeking doe licenses will now have to travel to McKean County seat, Smethport, to secure their tags, and only a few are left there. Doe licenses permit the purchaser to hunt only in the county stated on the license.

HUNTER RETURNS

Robert O'Rourke spent a long night in the woods Tuesday evening but succeeded in finding his way out early Wednesday morning. A search had been organized to find the 40-year old man from Homestead, Pa., but scanning the woods on Wednesday was not necessary. O'Rourke had been hunting in the Hearts Content area near the Liberty farm when his directions became entangled.

Over 1,000,000 Americans cured of cancer! Enough to fill the famous Rose Bowl ten times over. All of them alive and well because five, ten or even twenty years ago they went to their doctors in time.

In a single generation, cancer's cure-rate has been raised to one-in-three saved from one-in-seven saved...largely due to the trail-blazing programs of the American Cancer Society.

To learn how to guard yourself and your family against cancer, call our nearest office or write to "Cancer" in care of your local post office.
